Criteria for Written Communication

Competency in written communication represents a student's development and expression of ideas in writing across a variety of genres and styles. Written communication abilities develop over time through layered, interactive, and continual experiences across the curriculum.

Students should be able to:

Use Rhetorical Knowledge

- Demonstrate an understanding of audience, purpose, genre, syntax, structure, format and context that is responsive to the discipline and the assigned task(s).

Explore Content Development

- Use content to develop and explore ideas within the context of the discipline and the shape of the assignment.

Apply Genre and Disciplinary Conventions

- Apply formal and informal rules inherent in the expectations for writing in particular forms and/or academic fields including organization, content, presentation, formatting, and stylistic choices.

Compile Sources and Evidence

- Evaluate, apply, and synthesize sources in support of a claim, following an appropriate documentation system.

Address Control of Syntax and Mechanics

- Demonstrate proficiency with conventions, including spellings, grammar, mechanics, word choice and format appropriate to the writing task.
